

Jesus Showed Us the Good News: Every Life is Precious

Pope Saint John Paul II said, “A nation that kills its own children is a nation without hope.” In this time of national unrest, fake outrage, victimization, and political pandering, we as a nation must decide what is truly the biggest social injustice of our time: abortion. Our nation has committed immense sins throughout its history and has been trying to make up for it. These people or movements have a voice; they have lawyers, celebrities, politicians, and the media speaking on their behalf. Who is speaking on behalf of the voiceless and innocent unborn? If we become a culture of death and kill innocent babies out of convenience, how can we call ourselves a nation under God and allow the greatest cruelty committed to a human being? At my church, Blessed Sacrament Church, my priest always addresses how evil and wrong abortion is. Only God can determine when we are born and when we will die. Every diocese in every city must take a stand and defend all life from birth to natural death year-round, not only one month out of the year. We need to inform and rally everyone, especially young people. With God’s Will, we can stop it in this generation. It starts with educating parents, so they may educate their daughters and sons to respect one another and value human life. We must teach the young to know that the elderly has value and worth and deserve respect. They must know they are not a burden or an inconvenience. All life is precious. All life was given to us by God. Jesus taught us to love one another. He died for our sins. We cannot turn our backs on them and look the other way anymore.
